WORK OF THE CHOLERA.

The Disease Spreading in Spain—The Terrible Death Rate.

MADRID, Aug. 16.—The returns from the cholera infected districts of Spain show the total number of new cases on Saturday to be 4706 and the total number of deaths from the disease 178. The plague has made its appearance at Barcelona, where twenty-three cases and sixteen deaths are reported.

The cholera reports for to-day show that there were 15 new cases and 12 deaths in the city of Madrid and 65 new cases and 20 deaths in the province. A slight panic which broke out a few days ago, has subsided. The epidemic shows no further sign of an increase.

MAISELLES, Aug. 16.—There were twenty-seven deaths in this city today from cholera. At the Pharo hospital 179 cases were admitted and seventy died, while seventy remain under treatment. Several deaths from cholera have occurred in the lunatic asylum here. Several deaths are reported at Salon caused by typhoid fever and smallpox, which is of a severe type and very active.

Address of Welcome for Dr. Walsh.

DUBLIN, Aug. 17.—Municipal council to-day resolved to present Dr. Walsh with an address of welcome as the successor of the late Cardinal McCabe in the Archbishopric of Dublin. Some of the Protestant members objected to this and T. D. Sullivan, M.P., explained that the proposed memorial was intended to be an act of rejoicing over the overthrow of what is called a base and vile intrigue carried on at the Vatican by Mr. Errington to defeat the wish of the Irish people to have Dr. Walsh succeed Cardinal McCabe, because he was a home ruler. Mr. Sullivan said the demonstration was not intended in any way to cast any discredit on the protestants.

NATIONALIST DEMONSTRATION.

The Authorities Prevent a Meeting in the County of Tyrone.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—A Nationalist demonstration, which was to have been held at Cough, in the county of Tyrone, was prevented by the authorities without any bloodshed or serious trouble. tionals returned sullenly but peacefully, while the Orangemen of Cough grined, danced and shouted with delight under the protecting cover of the British lancers.

MAXWELL ARRIVES IN ST. LOUIS.

Preliminary Alleged Murderer Returned to the City of the Terrible Crime—He Refuses to talk About the Matter.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16.—Maxwell, the supposed murderer of C. Arthur Preller, arrived here this morning from San Francisco in charge of Detective Tracy. A crowd of from 2000 to 3000 people were at the depot when the train came in. Maxwell and his custodians were met at the depot by the chief of police with a detachment of police and were placed in a patrol wagon and driven to the four courts, where after a brief stop in the detective's room in the police headquarters, he was put in the "Heldover." The accounts by the reporters who rode in from Halsted, Kansas, on the train with Maxwell and who had free access to him and to the officers in charge of him are to the effect that he absolutely refused to talk about his case and positively asserted that he has at no time or place made any statement in regard to or in any way acknowledged that he had anything to do with Preller's death or knew anything about it. He says all the stories to the contrary are entirely untrue. Detective Tracy thinks he killed Preller for money, that the very few admissions he has made point in that direction and that his voyage from St. Louis to Auckland was a money making debauch and not a well-planned escape from justice.

Maxwell was in Chief Harrigan's office an hour or so this afternoon and a large number were introduced to him, but nothing regarding his case or what line of defense he will pursue was obtained from him. Charles Briger, the trunk maker, recognized Maxwell as the man to whom he sold the trunk in which Preller's body was found, and a porter at the Southern hotel recognized him as being a guest at the hotel in April. Maxwell will be turned over by the police to-morrow to the sheriff and will be placed in jail.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—A Herald despatch from St. Louis regarding the Preller murder case, says: "Your correspondent has received a despatch from a man who is working on the case, stating in positive terms that a great surprise is in store for the people in the shape of the testimony in the hands of the coroner and the prosecuting attorney. What the evidence is will only be made known when the prisoner is arraigned."

MERRITT'S RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Fuller Details of the Sad Affair—How the Accident Occurred.

The Buffalo papers bring fuller details of the shocking accident on the Grand Trunk railway on the 10th inst., in which William B. Jennings was fatally injured. The Pacific express left Niagara Falls about ten minutes late, and was evidently trying to make this up. It consisted of two engines, baggage, express, mail cars and nine passenger coaches, all pretty well filled. As it was nearing Merritt it was found that the air brakes would not work, and the engineers whistled for hand-brakes to be applied, but the train had such headway that they were of little use, and it ran past the station at a high rate of speed. About 100 yards west of the station the track crossed the old Welland canal by means of an iron swing-bridge. The tug, Bruce had just passed the bridge and before the bridge could be fully closed the train was upon it. The front engine left the track at the entrance to the bridge. The second engine, baggage-car, express, and smoking cars followed. All ran across the bridge on the flooring. At the west end of the bridge is a steep embankment, on both sides of which is a deep pond. The engineer, Hutchinson, and his fireman of the first engine and fireman of the second engine, jumped and escaped with few slight bruises. After crossing the bridge the foremost engine made a plunge down the right embankment into the pond. The second one followed and piled on top of it, the mail car breaking loose and plunging down the opposite side, the baggage car coming next and running over the right hand side and telescoping into the last engine. The first passenger coach lay partly down the embankment and partly on the track, the rest of the train remaining either on the flooring of the bridge or on the track. Engineer Thomas Cox of London stuck to his post and was almost instantly killed. When found his hand still grasped the lever of his engine. He was mangled and scalded by the escaping steam so as to be almost unrecognizable, and was so jammed into the debris that both of his feet had to be cut off in order to release the body.

Express Messenger Jennings was terribly mangled by the escaping steam. He was conveyed to the hospital at St. Catharines, where he expired about nine o'clock that evening.

Thomas Jackson of Buffalo, baggage-man, received some serious internal injuries by jumping. He is not thought to be fatally hurt.

Robert Hurd of London, had his shoulder knocked out of joint. The other passengers on the train escaped with a severe shaking up. Had there been four seconds more time, the bridge would have been closed, but had it happened one minute sooner the loss of life would have been terrible, as almost the entire train would have been plunged into the canal.

Dr. Gage and his Wonderful Cures!

Again Dr. Gage has made the circuit of his northern route, and again has been greeted by a multitude of suffering invalids, anxious to avail themselves of his remarkable skill. It is a significant fact that Dr. Gage visits his places of appointment regularly, which no man can do unless he has the ability to cure cases that the ordinary local practitioners fail upon. And we are happy to see that some local physicians not only recognize this fact by recommending Dr. Gage's treatment, but have called him in consultation upon cases that have baffled their skill. This is right, for no physician who devotes himself to the treatment of acute diseases, such as fevers, etc., can be expected to meet with the success of a specialist like Dr. Gage, who has seen thousands of the most difficult and complicated long-standing diseases in all their phases. It is true Dr. Gage's treatment is somewhat peculiar, yet by it he is constantly demonstrating the fact that in the field, the forest, and upon the mountain-side there exists in wild profusion an antidote for every curable disease. The results of his skill are not far-fetched, but can be seen on every hand, for hundreds walk the avenues of life to-day who have been rescued from beds of languishing despair through his beneficent instrumentality. This is no idle talk, as the following will show:

Mrs. George D. Kibler, Plainfield, Vt., wife of the well known and popular station agent, was a terrible sufferer, with catarrh of the stomach and other difficulties; went to the hospital at Burlington, and was treated by the physician in charge, but returned home, and when Dr. Gage took her case she weighed about 100 pounds; to-day she weighs 125 pounds, feels first-rate, and can eat anything.

George S. Appleton, Esq., 232 Maple street, Burlington, Vt., has a relative who was helpless three years with spinal disease, involving the liver, kidneys, stomach, and nervous system; weighed but 90 pounds. Dr. Gage cured her without seeing her, and she now weighs 145 pounds, and is well.

E. G. Bonwell, Esq., Elm street, Montpelier, Vt., was very low with lung and other diseases; could not be carried to the Pavilion, so Dr. Gage treated him without seeing him, and, strange as it may seem, he is up and out again, attending to business.

Mrs. C. M. Lyon, Elm street, Montpelier, a familiar case, with the same results. She has no cough, does her work, and feels like a new being.

C. L. Buffum, Melrose, Vt., was helpless with spinal and kidney and bladder diseases; could not move a foot; cured, and Dr. Gage never saw him until cured.

Mrs. George A. Stratton, Montpelier, Vt., had worst form of catarrh, for years; system greatly reduced, and difficulties complicated; the effect is truly wonderful.

J. J. Thompson, Burlington, Vt., the popular mail agent on the Lamotte railroad, says that Dr. Gage has treated a relative for a sore limb with good success.

Mrs. Jesse Flint, Montpelier, was terribly afflicted with a complication of difficulties; the change wrought is wonderful, and she desires that it be known.

J. W. Butterfield, North Montpelier, gives great credit to Dr. Gage for successfully treating his case.

Oran Bishop, Postmaster at Melrose, Vt., says his wife was on crutches, and health very poor; cured.

Mrs. A. K. Balch, Barre, Vt., had a complication of diseases; so feeble that her husband had to carry her from the parlor to the Doctor's rooms at first visit; is now doing her work.

Dr. Gage not only examines a great number of patients daily, but by the assistance of a secretary and stenographer in constant employment, keeps a record of every case, and is not neglected, for every mail carries his magnetic remedies to the homes of the sick and afflicted, and every mail returns to him testimonials of cures expressed in the most enthusiastic terms of appreciation.

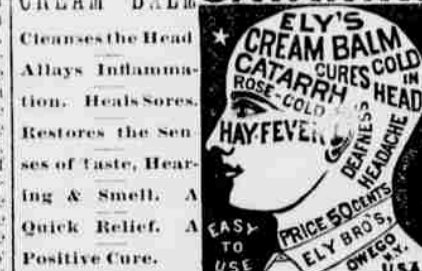

Dr. Gage's address is No. 26 W. 31st St., N. Y.
